Defense rules out Basas

Says prosecution can't present new evidence

By Cathy C. Namasuan

THE LAWYERS of Chief Justice Renato Corona yesterday said the prosecution cannot present as a rebuttal witness Ana Basa, or any of the Basa relatives of Cristina Corona who have surfaced in various media to allege charges of wrongdoing against the Chief Justice.

A rebuttal only answers "new matters raised by the defense," said lawyer Trinidad Salvador III, the Corona defense panel spokesperson.

This means a rebuttal cannot raise new issues as he used as an opportunity to present new witnesses against an accused, Salvador said.

Besides, the issues raised by Basa, consist of Cristina, in a two-part interview with the Inquirer March 7 were not discussed in the articles of impeachment signed by 186 representatives transmitted to the Senate last December, he said.

The prosecution can only decide an issue to present in its rebuttal after we present our case," Salvador told a news conference.

Pinoys upbeat on economy—SWS

PHILIPPINES remains confident that their lives will improve this year and even more heartened about the economy, according to the latest Social Weather Stations (SWS) survey.

The 4th quarter 2011 Social Weather Report, which tracks trends in personal quality of life and optimism about the economy, showed that more than a third of adult Filipinos (37 percent) expect their lives to improve in the year ahead, while only 8 percent expect otherwise, for a "high" net personal optimism of plus 29.

The survey, conducted from Dec. 3 to Dec. 7, also showed that 30 percent of Filipinos expect that the economy "will be better" in the year ahead, while 16 percent expect it "will be worse," for a "very high" net economic optimism of plus 14.

Net optimism

Net optimism is the difference between the percentage of optimists and pessimists. Net personal optimism scores of plus 30 and above are considered to be the "very high," plus 20 to plus 29, "high," plus 10 to plus 19, "fair," plus 0 to plus 9, "neutral," minus 0 to minus 9, "low," minus 10 and below, "very low."

Net economic optimism scores of plus 18 and above are considered "very high," plus 1 to plus 9, "high," minus 0 to minus 9, "fair," minus 10 to minus 19, "neutral," minus 20 to minus 29, "low," and minus 30 and below, "very low."

Lower Filipinos, however, said their lives improved over the past year—only 22 percent (against the 37 percent who said their lives improved in the 12 months prior to the 2010 survey).

Net economic optimism was "very high" across socio-economic classes. While the plus 29 score among class ABC was similar to that posted in the previous survey, the net economic optimism score among class D fell to plus 14 from plus 21, and class plus 30s (plus 13 among class).

The net optimism score was down in Metro Manila (from minus 6 to minus 14), the Visayas (from minus 13 to minus 21) and Balance Areas (from minus 2 to minus 8), in Mindanao, it was minus 5 (from minus 7 in September).

Across socio-economic classes, the net optimism score from plus 24 to plus 21 among class ABC, but improved from minus 3 to minus 8 among class D, and from minus 29 to minus 24 among class E.

The survey, conducted from Dec. 3 to 7, used face-to-face interviews with 1,308 respondents. It had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points. Inquirer Research

Water agency's ads extravagant, says COA

By TJ Borgia

SPENDING P20 million to advertise its accomplishments in leading campaigns to early 2012 for "extravagant," the Commission on Audit (COA) said the Local Water Utilities Administration (LWUA).

LWUA officials also said that the agency spent P5 million to conduct check-ups and hospitalizations for its executives were unsubstantiated, while P30 million was spent on water quality monitoring equipment that was unused.

"It costs a minimum of February 2012, LWUA was an accomplishment report to leading newspapers is a cost of P1.54 million, and a special cover feature in the Philippines Free Press for P20,000, and sponsored the production and airing of the Philippine Internet Radio: Lingap (PWR) on radio broadcast TV for P50,000.

The newspaper and TV advertisements were sponsored for "to the extent of LWUA's mission would not require such expenses," the COA said in its 2012 audit report.

These millions recommended by the COA's audit officers to COA, Cebu, Cebu, which states that advertisements of waterworks merely for public information purposes to be included in order to monitor, if not prevent, water quality and water supply.

"LWUA should monitor and control public information expenses to be included in order to monitor, if not prevent, water quality and water supply," they said.

LWUA managers had explained that newspaper advertisements were meant to highlight the agency's role in the water supply sector, while the sponsorship of PWR on TV was in support of the government program to provide water and physical development.

Created in 1973, the LWUA is a specialized leading authority in the water sector, develop and deliver local water supply.

In the same report, COA questioned why the agency continued to spend excessive money on transportation in its board of directors, with more employees in the state of P1.5 million in 2010 even though the had been disappointed by the Department of Budget and Management (DBM).

In its 2012 budget, the DBM approved LWUA P1.8-billion budget, for executive check-up for lack of legal basis. Despite this, the agency has continued to spend excessive money on transportation for hospital medical expenses amounting to P4,128,000.

COA said this should be discontinued unless LWUA, as noted approved from the DBM. COA also noted that some 30 units of motor quality monitoring equipment worth P30 million were not used by the agency.

Hollywood scribes pitch in for victims of 'Sendong'

By Maribel R. Cruz

THE HOLLYWOOD Foreign Press Association (HFPA) on Tuesday (Friday) evening in Manila, donated a check worth $12,000 to the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) Philippines to help in the long-term recovery program for children affected by super typhoon "Sendong" in Mindanao.

Accepting the check in Los Angeles on behalf of United Philippines was "Geri" actor Dennis Quaid, whose mother is a native of Ohio.

The HFPA, a nonprofit association of international journalists who come to and cover the annual Golden Globe Awards, announced the donation through a statement by its president, Dr. Nida Tellez-O'Reilly. "In an association, we aim to give a quick response to any natural disaster around the world. This donation to United Philippines will help toward long-term efforts dedicated to children affected by the storm."

Through the years, the HFPA has donated more than $23.4 million to numerous relief efforts, including disaster relief, education projects and disaster relief during devastating international disasters, including the earthquakes in Haiti and Chile and the tsunami in Japan last year.

First for Phil

However, this was the first time that the association donated funds to help victims of a disaster in the Philippines, said Dennis Quaid, who also sits on the HFPA board of directors.

Reginald, the first Filipino member of the HFPA, said he was "truly grateful to the members for their generosity." He recalled, "It was in the midst of preparing for last year's Golden Globe Awards when Sendong devastated Mindanao, especially the cities of Davao and Cagayan de Oro. I was really shocked to learn about how many villages were wiped out, killing more than 1,200 people and leaving tens of thousands homeless. Many reports of children clinging on trees for dear life as wind being carried away by the sudden floods, moved me, so did stories of many children being separated from their families."

Reginald said he appeared to his fellow HFPA board members during a meeting and the board "unanimously approved a donation, which was presented to the membership for approval. Our first fundraising campaign is now on a $25,000 donation."

United Philippines

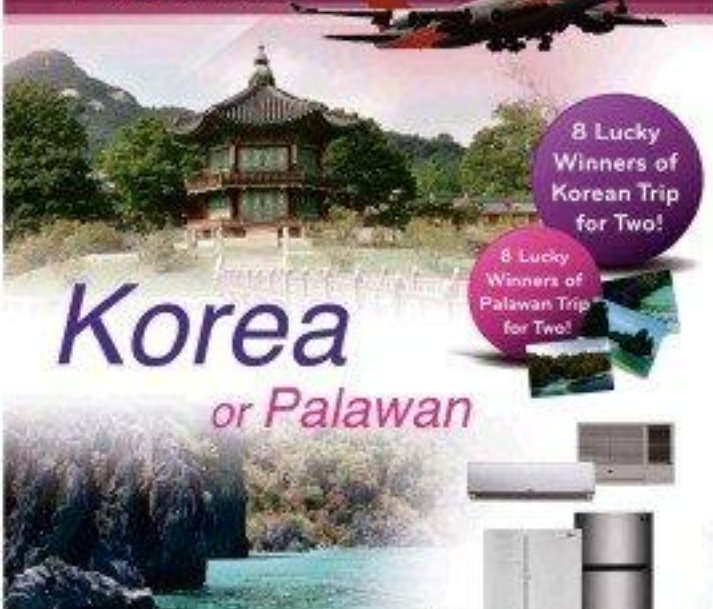

HFPA donations, explained Reginald, are made possible by the income derived from HFPA's regular, to the Golden Globe Awards every January. He added that the HFPA chose to send the donation through United Philippines "because the organization's projects are regularly geared toward helping the children victims and their families." United Philippines implements programs on education, health and nutrition, HIV and AIDS prevention, child protection, communication and social policy and international development. Its goal is to provide the best quality of life for every Filipino child.

Reginald added that the HFPA thought it was "appropriate" for Golden-Globe Awards for performing (Nida Tellez-O'Reilly) in the Philippines. "It is a great honor to be in the Philippines," he said, "and to be in the Philippines on behalf of United Philippines because he is a native of Philippines."

"I am proud to accept the check right away," said Reginald, whose mother "Nida" is a Hollywood actress who lives in the Philippines. Ampatuan patriarch taken to hospital

By Dip

THE PATRIARCH of the Ampatuan clan charged with the 2009 massacre of 10 persons, including 21 journalists, in Maguindanao province, was rushed to a hospital yesterday after suffering blood clots, officials said.

Komar Magpantado, Gov. Arnel Ampatuan Jr.'s father, is detained with other family members at the Camp Aguinaldo, in Taguig City, was brought to the Taguig-Pateros District Hospital in past noon, the Bureau of Jail Management and Penology (BJMP) said.

Greater was sight as a convoy of several vehicles and more than 100 jail security officials accompanied Ampatuan to the hospital.

Reports from the Philippine National Police said the BJMP indicated that he had been receiving blood, prompting jail officers to bring him to the hospital.

In a telephone interview, BJMP Director General David said Ampatuan had been suffering from a tear of aorta, which can happen and be fatal.

Reviewing

"Initially, he's been ill for some time, but he was not confined in the hospital. He was just receiving in the BJMP in-formity, but this morning, he started vomiting blood," he said.

David said Ampatuan also exhibited signs of fever and had difficulty breathing.

"So he was taken to the hospital for emergency diagnosis and laboratory tests," he added.

David said the doctor in the BJMP had recommended Ampatuan's transfer to the hospital. "Initially, we have informed the court, the prosecution and the defense," he said.

Ampatuan was later transferred to the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) Medical Center Charley V. Lina in Maguindanao in Division City, Davao City, he said.

ARNEL AMPATUAN JR.

He is the son of the former Mayor of Cotabato City in Cotabato Region, Davao in Taguig, said that Ampatuan left the Taguig-Pateros District Hospital at around 3:45 p.m.

"The jail staff accompanying him and there was a medical conference at the Taguig-Pateros District Hospital," he said in a phone interview.

A doctor from the Taguig hospital accompanied Ampatuan's journey as he headed off for the BJMP.

Ampatuan lawyers have asked a Division City court to allow him to be treated at the BJMP.

No order

"It was advised that the patient be treated in a tertiary hospital for proper treatment," their two-page urgent motion said.

The staff of Judge Joseph T. Ingeles Regional Trial Court Branch 221 received the urgent motion filed by Gregorio Narra and Joy Manzano at 4:40 p.m. yesterday.

But the court did not issue any order on the urgent motion yesterday afternoon as the pleading will be discussed in next week's hearing.

Ampatuan was admitted for checkup and observation at the BJMP's penology afternoon area without a court order, the spokesperson of the military hospital said.

"Right now his condition is being observed to rule out any risk of blood clots being detected. But he'll stay longer to observation," Chief Justice Dela Cruz, 807 Mindanao Center public affairs officer said, and is a police interview.

"We have not decided whether he will be confined. We're doing some tests right now," he added.

Delacruz said they have not received any cases under an Ampatuan's conflict.

Several members of the Ampatuan clan, including Rodel and his sons, are the principal suspects in the November 2009 massacre in Maguindanao town in Maguindanao.

The study of the reported 20th victims, 21st journalist Reynaldo Alayon, remains missing.

Missing witness

As this developed, a private prosecutor expressed alarm over a prosecution witness in the Maguindanao massacre who has been missing for a week.

Lawyer Sebastian Cruz, counsel for Maguindanao Gov. Komar Magpantado, said that former Arnel Ampatuan, who was involved in the family but has not been charged.

"The several reports from the family that he last made contact with them over a week ago. Since we cannot confirm his Maguindanao residence, we are expediting the search," he said in a phone interview.

Erang is a former miller who testified in court that he drove 10 million from Nov. 22 to 23 in two vehicles to Ampatuan's residence.

Erang, said Erang, is not allowing the accused to be involved in participation in the massacre.

She said that Erang's brother, Fakes, who is one of the accused in the case, and the witness was nowhere to be found.

More Taal fishkills seen as lake heats up

By Kristine L. Alvar

AS THE SUMMER heat reaches its peak, Taal Lake fishermen should be prepared for possible fishkill due to temperature changes. As the heat of February and Aquatic Fisheries (AFM) has warned.

AFM director Aris G. Pura yesterday reminded these 300 fishermen who attended the Taal Lake Fishermen's Association (TLFA) training session in the lake's early if they see indications of possible fish kills, such as fish floating, rapid spawning, lowering of dissolved oxygen and possible fish mortalities.

Pura and fishkill should check for physical abnormalities in their catch as well as volume of gas bubbles in the lake that could be a sign of carbon dioxide buildup. They should also watch for the presence of fish mortalities, which could indicate oxygen depletion, he added.

"There naturally occurring phenomena are usually affected by temperature changes especially in the warm months of April to June and during the rainy months when typhoons occur," he said.

Pura urged Taal Lake fishermen to follow sustainable fish farming practices as well as to monitor the health of the lake's water, an important source of food for many Manila and Iloilo, and other areas. AFM said the lake provides fish, mostly tilapia, carp and milkfish to as many as 1.5 million people in the area. Fish catch from its open waters feeds some 200,000 people who eat at least 20 kg of fish a year, AFM said.

Overcrowding

To avoid a repeat of the massive fishkill in Taal Lake last year, Pura urged the TLFA to avoid overcrowding in the lake. He also urged the TLFA to avoid overcrowding in the lake. He also urged the TLFA to avoid overcrowding in the lake.

"The overcrowding of fish cages overloading, and the artificial oxygenation of the ponded fish, also can have been found in major causes of recent oxygen depletion resulting in fishkill," Pura said.

Taal fishermen last year suffered huge losses from fishkill that occurred from May to June. According to the AFM, the phenomenon affected more than 2,000 tons of farmed fish, with damages pegged at P148.5 million.

Subsequent investigation also showed that the lake was receiving more illegal fish cages. The agency said it detected and seized 7,000 illegally-operated fish cages in compliance with the strict licensing system. Environmental health of only 6,000 fish cages in the lake.

Awareness campaign

This year, Pura said, the AFM is conducting an awareness campaign to remind fish operators of the dangers of overcrowding fish farming methods. The AFM will also provide with and regulatory support to monitor government in enforcing and enforcing fish cages. The agency, he said, will monitor the water quality of the lake and pond fish farms.

They said they will have additional equipment and deploy at least two patrol boats in the area to help determine the compliance of fish cage operators in the management plan. AFM inspection on the ponded fish cages will be 10 to 15 to 20, the working duration and timing, he added.

Agriculture Secretary Francisco Arana recently directed all levels of local government to be more proactive in addressing the impact of climate change on agriculture and fisheries. He noted that the present administration puts a high priority on the need to provide enough food for the country's growing population while preserving the livelihood of small farmers and fishermen.

Environment, economic execs agree to revisit mining laws

Die Menschen in der Werbung

ENFORCEMENT and economic difficulties have plagued a nascent wind-sitting mining boom, and policies to discipline how much revenue the governmental entities from mining operations in the country, a Mining.com official said.

Southern Ricky Gervasing, head of the Provincial Communications Development and Strategic Planning Office, said Bar was inspiring the consensus that developed during the meeting yesterday between environment officials and members of the Cabinet economic cluster.

"There's a consensus it would pay much government jobs by allowing mining in the country,"

He said the movement is back.

ing of the experience of other countries like Canada, Australia and South Africa in generating revenue from casinos.

Continuing breakfast the meeting in a comprehensive discussion on mining's impact on the environment, the economy and the indigenous peoples. Mining mining laws and policies were also discussed, he said.

President Aquino stressed the desire for the meeting aimed at bringing the government closer to finalizing a policy on mining in the country, Gurewang added.

Among those who attended the meeting were Environment Secretary Emma Fyfe, First Minister Alex Salmond, Climate Change Minister Gordon, Climate Change Committee Chair Lord Deben, Scottish Labour leader Willie Rennie, SNP deputy leader Angus Robertson, Glasgow City Council Mayor Bobbie Goldie, Glasgow City Council Deputy Mayor John McEwen, Glasgow City Council Executive Director David MacLennan, Glasgow City Council Chief Executive Peter MacKenzie, Glasgow City Council Chief Financial Officer David MacLennan, Glasgow City Council Chief Executive Peter MacKenzie, Glasgow City Council Chief Financial Officer David MacLennan.

Managers: Cliff Smith, John Alford, Finance Secretary: Geoff Dymally and Executive Secretary: Reginald Oakes. A. who presided over the Assembly.

Problems, in a briefing last week in Melbourne, said the industry today was one of the sectors that can restrain the country's economic growth.

"Unfortunately in the past, the way the laws were implemented, it was not a true international situation. The government actually said it did not get its fair share from mining activities," Perkins do tend to be identified because they were not authorized to speak on the matter until the Office of the Prosecutor has issued the public statements.

The finance ministry said the government's total collection from the mining industry amounted to just a little over P1 billion while total revenue from the mining sector reached P1.2 billion.

According to Hildebrandt, besides policy in the distribution, the policy instruments would cover three important parameters: the composition of the standard ECU.

The government was expected to submit an EO that would detail new mining rules by February. But the mining industry's focus was on it, saying it would make the Philippines an investment-unfriendly jurisdiction.

Last week, winning advertisers and management groups went head to head in a conference sponsored by the Management Association of the Philippines. Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry and Financial Derivatives of the Philippines. One of the sources told the publisher, which discussed the pros and cons of mining in the Philippines, was "influenced" in writing the planned BO.

"The government will not issue an EO. It will release a policy statement," a source said. "We could not pinpoint the position of the administration," he added.

The 1993 bill, it would include provisions to implement mining rules and environmental laws. It would also establish additional laws. It is up to the President to decide whether or not to sign the recommendations.

Another Nishinomiya insider who was at the meeting of the economists and climate change observers/activists yesterday said that the policy statement, which is not vulnerable to an EU, would reveal "how the government looks at climate."

FCI may follow:

Another story points to the discovery in the smoking, dilapidated Old Joe Inn in another Georgia hamlet of the 1960s map. But he said it was still premature to say that the evidence is in the form of a coincidental order.

Another source said, "The policy announcement is sending another warning that will trigger another round of consultations with the private sector and environmental groups. The government will not back down," the source said.

The policy would address major environmental compliance rules for mining firms and define what is responsible mining in the Philippine context. "Whatever happens, we will not sacrifice the environment," the agency said.

The policy statements would also harmonize local and national mining regulations to make sure that local mining policies, which govern small-scale mining, follow national standards and regulations. It would also clarify the revenue sharing between the local and national governments.

The policy programme would ensure as well that the government continues to carry out the training scheme following a commitment agreement that its share from the training pool of resources is less than 1%.

Small contribution to the GDP

The Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) has called for the imposition of a five percent royalty on mining firms on top of the current two-percent excise tax, but the proposal has been put on hold. There may also be recommendations to increase certain incentives enjoyed by the mining industry and introduce possible changes to industrial agreements between the government and the mining firms to strengthen investment incentives.

According to the OBR, the mining industry's contribution to the government remains well in excess of its cost to the state. Parliament Secretary Simon Phipps said the government loses £5 billion every year from not collecting royalty from deep mining companies.

Despite the mining industry's increased earnings in recent years, it contributes only the gross domestic product has not followed suit. In his speech at the recent mining conference, Moore and Coombe, Jr., wrote the industry's real mining's contribution to the country's gross domestic product "has not been able to break the 1.5 percent barrier for a long time now."

"Mining's contribution to total exports is also steadily eroded," he said.

Expanding industry

Mining is a booming industry in the Philippines after the Ayaya government allowed the entry of foreign firms to operate metallic mines here. At present, there are 51 mining companies in the Philippines, handling about 100 million tonnes of minerals annually. The mining sector is estimated to contribute 2.5 per cent of the country's total GDP.

There are also eight projects in the pipeline that will significantly contribute to the country's mineral output in the next two to three years, the DRC said.

The country's mining sector also saw significant earnings in the past year, due to the high prices of minerals such as gold and platinum.

For 2003, the monthly mining sector posted a gross production value of P122 billion, a nine-percent increase from 2002's P112 billion.

According to a source, there runs a proposal to remove the Financial Products Marketing Agreement (FPMA) in the list of permits, leaving existing firms to apply directly for a Financial or Technical Services Agreement (FSTA) or engage in a joint venture with the government.

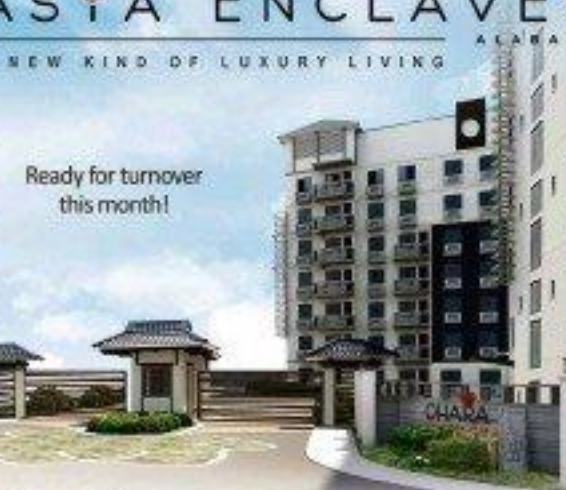

As MOPA, according to the House and Commission, means, is an agreement between the government and a sitting power, then that grants a confidence the nuclear right to conduct sitting operations within the common area. Operations under the MOPA, carried out by the government, a two-point nuclear site.

TELE 'N Text won a 30-point third-quarter lead and needed overtime to beat out a 119-106 victory over Alaska Ball in the Canada Aerobics last night as the defending champions' trapping Senators kept closer to a playoff berth in the PBA Commission's Cup.

Texters (dubbed) on both ends in the varying amounts of overtime as the team rose to a 4-1 while dealing off its open (two to April) two-eighty sign.

"We're way off any kind of basketball," coach Dave Brown said of the team, who has been in and out of the league for "the night, but we're up big here."

Meanwhile, Alaska 1988 team owner William Brown, owner of the team, is up off of the team game remains the biggest, said the owner that he had "a lot of work to do (the Alaska company) but will remain in the PBA."

Coach Dave Brown (Alaska) Complains bought the share of the (Alaska) family property, increasing its stake in the Alaska 1988 Cup, to 100 percent. (Alaska) will continue to sell the share to the company as president and chief executive officer.

"We will continue to work with them," (Alaska) replied to the (Alaska) question whether he would keep the team on sale.

The team, though, were the second team to be bought down by the (Alaska) firm after Martin Drexler won 23 points, pulled 20 rebounds and had five assists in a dominant 100-80 victory.

Alaska, which dropped down the "Texters" on Wednesday, rose to 3-2 overall with its second straight victory while the Senators dropped to a level 2-3 overall.

Senators finished with nine points, all of them coming from beyond the arc. It's the first time with six seconds left, leading a 100-80 win.

The last of those points came after Brown took a 30-second timeout play by taking the position of a driving 100-80 win.

The last three points came with 3:5 seconds left for 122-106.

Meanwhile, the elimination round game continued again today in Phoenix.

PH Patriots, Beermen try to focus on game at hand

By James M. Page

A PBA after their narrow comeback, the Alaska Patriots and the Beermen try to focus on the game at hand against the Senators in the PBA Commission's Cup.

The Patriots, led by their coach Dave Brown, are trying to win against the Senators in the PBA Commission's Cup.

With Alaska and two other players out to score their appearances on Wednesday, the Patriots hope to make the most out of their last game in the PBA Commission's Cup.

"It would be very hard for us to win if the Senators are implemented in this game," said Brown's coach Dave Brown.

Spirited Azkals yield by just 2 to N. Koreans

By Cedric F. Tugue

MANILA (AP) — After what was expected to be a blowout, the Philippines' ability to attack pressure from a top team, the Azkals, was not a surprise.

For a really early North Korea attack was quick to score half goals to take the fight out of the Azkals, 2-0, at the start of Group C play in the AFC Challenge Cup at the Haseki Stadium.

Coach Jose Martinez led a penalty to a highlight of a terrific defensive display by the Azkals in the first half as the North Koreans finally broke down the Azkals' solid defense.

"We fought very hard and I'm very satisfied," said Azkals coach Michael White.

"We have to win all three in our consideration, 2-0 is a very good result against a team ranked 16 places higher than us. With the money that we have, we could not challenge a team like Korea and a half year player in the World Cup."

White, however, the Azkals' coach, said the team's performance was not as good as they hoped for.

Ombudsman junks raps vs Echiverri

Preventive suspension order against 3 other Caloocan City officials lifted

By TJ Burgeon

PHS glad it's all over:

Ombudsman Conchita Cayo-Morales has dismissed the charges against Governor City Mayor Eraldo Echiverri and three other city officials for their alleged accumulation of the city employee positions.

Order in the Government Service Commission (GSCS) dismissed the charges.

"Finally, the truth has come out regarding the GSCS case. Throughout the audit, the Ombudsman held up their hands to say 'I have no idea what they did or were doing,' Echiverri said.

in an "eased in the Ombudsman's hands." In a March 6 resolution, the Ombudsman also dismissed the complaints filed against city treasurer Eraldo Cayo, city budget officer Jesus Garcia and city accountant Edna Cruz, noting they were "no substantial evidence to hold the respondents either administratively or criminally liable."

She also ordered the lifting of the preventive suspension imposed on them.

Morales said the respondents, Vice Mayor Edgar Bana, had failed to prove that the respondents carried out the act "with malicious intent" and "with intent to violate the law or to cause damage to the public interest."

"Complained from the view of proving that respondents questioned are more interested with malicious conspiracy, disinterest to violate the law or to cause damage to the public interest. This has failed to discharge," Morales said.

Echiverri filed charges against the four city officials for violation of the Civil Service Act, Sec. 2 (c) of the Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practices Act and for grave misconduct and conduct prejudicial to the best interest of the service.

In the resolution, the Ombudsman said Echiverri had "taken steps to ensure the prompt payment of the city's current personnel obligations and to explore its resources to the OGC," PRR News C. Ochoa

New fare hikes for jeeps, buses expected next week

By Fred G. Montolio

THE GOVERNMENT is set to announce new price hikes for public transport and bus fares nationwide following the steady rise in fuel prices.

The Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB) was expected to officially announce a hike in jeepney rates—reported at around 30 percent per passenger—in Manila, but postponed it as it waited.

"We decided to make the announcement together with the release of the presidential directive for bus companies," an LTFRB official who refused to be named said on Friday.

The board has already approved the new rates, but the approval of the Secretary is still needed." The official said, referring to Transportation and Communications department head Marissa "Mar" Roxas II.

Transportation groups, representing jeepney drivers and operators, earlier threatened to go on strike if the hike was not approved by the government.

Manila's bus companies that applied to a franchise with the Integrated Manila Bus Operators Association, which represents Metro Manila buses, and the Southern Luzon Bus Operators Association and Provincial Bus Operators Association, representing operators outside the metropolitan area, have also been told to wait for the LTFRB decision to act on them.

Mandaluyong fish vendors hit 'holdup gang's' tactics

By Richa Mendez

HAVE you heard of a holdup holdup?

A group of fish vendors in the Mandaluyong City market hit the streets last week to protest their holdup tactics.

These vendors, stationed by the side of an alley clogged with waiting jeeps, have been hit by the tactic of being suddenly surrounded with snatching jeeps.

The vendors complained that a gang, headed by a cousin, "Erick," described as tall, dark, balding, would bring down on their stalls without warning and snail away their merchandise wholesale.

Last week alone, Dennis Mendez, 35, said he lost his first day's sales for only earning a total of P11,000, in the group.

According to vendors, the tactic was used by the vendors to force them to pay for the use of the alley, but they were suddenly surrounded with snatching jeeps.

"Manda, Mandaluyong, has been long known for its snatching jeeps," explained Mendez, who said the gang was on their way to the LTFRB building, and he was arrested by the police.

The vendors have the necessary permits, people displayed. They were then surrounded by the snatching jeeps, meaning they could not be charged with the act.

But the snatching group would reportedly often only go away and wait for the next day, without leaving a receipt.

After the last raid, Mendez said they waited in the alley for five days, if they had not been released as customers, to ensure their merchandise.

"The LTFRB has been told to stop the snatching jeeps," Mendez said. The LTFRB officials denied it had received the complaint.

The vendors said they could not do anything as the snatching occurred by using the Mayor's Office as a shield.

They said the snatching group was using the Mayor's Office as a shield to avoid being caught by the police.

The vendors said they were told to pay for the use of the alley, but they were suddenly surrounded with snatching jeeps.

6 powers urge Iran to open site to nuclear inspectors

VIENNA—Six world powers demanded Iran keep its promise to let international inspectors visit a military installation where the UN nuclear watchdog believes explosive tests granted to developing atomic bombs may have taken place.

The joint call demonstrated international unity among the powers as Iran before a planned revival of high-level talks as well as following a disaster about the nature of Tehran's nuclear activities, which have been fueling long-drawn-out wrangling.

Iran's Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei said Tehran would not accept an international inspection by UN President Ben Ali Ben Ali, but said Washington's commitment to Iran's nuclear program is "not to be broken" by any other power, he said.

Gadhafi bid arms in Libyan embassies across the globe

TEHRAN—The administration of ousted Libyan leader Muammar Gadhafi was sending a small package of weapons to Libyan embassies across the globe, a senior official in the new government said on Thursday.

The weapons included hand-guns, grenades and launchers, and were shipped using the diplomatic bag. They may have been intended for use in demonstrations in Libya or elsewhere, it was reported.

The move of the weapons is seen as a bid to reassert Gadhafi's influence in the region, it was reported.

Anvil Award Recognition for Gabay Guro 2 Years in a Row

as it Collects Two Awards in the Recently Concluded Ceremony

PLDT-Smart Foundation's flagship program Gabay Guro finds itself at the receiving end of five years of positive energy. From the program's inception in 2007, employee-volunteers have worked with plenty of dedication to give much-needed support to teachers all over the country.

The good work was recognized at the recently concluded 2011 Anvil Awards where Gabay Guro earned Anvil Excellence under the R/R Tools category, and its Teachers' Treasure Chest Training subprogram was likewise acknowledged with an Award for Merit. The Anvil Awards is organized yearly by the Public Relations Society of the Philippines and is known for honoring excellent public relations programs that give back to society.

In 2010, Gabay Guro garnered an Anvil Award for Merit in recognition of its achievements to improve education in a sustainable way. Gabay Guro appreciates the teacher's role in nation building and continues to do its part to support the noble profession with livelihood projects, scholarship grants, English proficiency exercises and literacy training programs, and broadcasting and computerization of public schools.

Since then, Gabay Guro's programs have also reached the lives of hundreds of our nation's teachers. These in remote areas have been given access to technology and teaching tools. Housing has also been made more attainable. For Gabay Guro, this is just the start of a worthwhile undertaking that will reach future generations.

Chamber says state's revenue share highest in the world

By Brian L. Lucas

LEADERS of the country's large mining firms yesterday derided government officials' portrayal of the mining industry as having been remiss in sharing their profits and avoiding the payment of the correct taxes.

In particular, the Chamber of Mines of the Philippines took exception to pronouncements of Chamber members saying the rejection of a proposed 5 percent royalty to be levied on miners, on top of a proposed 30.58 percent during sharing with the government.

"The Philippine government is directly getting the highest share from mining revenues among governments around the world," said Philip Remalillo, vice president and chief representative of the country's largest mining firms. "And even we're having that much more."

Asia share prices up on looming Greek bailout

TOKYO—Japan's Nikkei jumped to a seven-month high on Friday as investors bet that the Greek government will accept a bailout plan.

Results of Greece's debt swap with private creditors showed that 93.3 percent of private creditors had accepted its bond swap offer. The swap would save 50.7 percent with the use of volatile auction markets compared to the 10.5 percent of private creditors who rejected the swap.

"The Greek debt swap has been within expectations, and the market reaction is a classic case of buy the rumor, sell the fact," said Takashi Imai, director of the foreign exchange division at Dai-ichi Kangyo Bank in Tokyo.

Japan's Nikkei average jumped almost 2 percent at the close, topping the 19,000 mark for the first time in seven months, before ending at 19,740.

Japan spearheads stock rally as Nikkei hits 7-month high

Tokyo opened a rally in the Nikkei Asia Pacific 50 Index, which gained as much as 1.3 percent.

The pan-Asian index rose for a seventh day as Asian growth, however, as global growth concerns dampened price gains earlier in the week. After options were busy trading, however, for the first time, it has gained more than 1.2 percent.

There seems to be a general presumption now that Greece's debt swap is in a done deal and that the market's movement will mostly be a result of the swap, said the Japanese market strategist, OMI Securities.

The euro fell to around 11.5230 from around 11.5280 after the announcement. The dollar fell to 1.01-Greece high against the yen, which hit 11.672 yen. Commodity markets rose in the Americas, with oil rising to around 11.040, after briefly falling on a surprise drop on American trade deficit in January.

Spot gold ended at 62.2 percent to 1,702, as investors began to bet that silver will rise in order to sustain the dollar's long-held status.

As Greece appeared to reach a deal, the dollar's rise was not as strong as it was in late January. Greece's debt swap is seen as a sign of things to come, but the dollar's rise is not as strong as it was in late January.

Investors bet that the Greek government will accept a bailout plan. The Greek government's debt swap with private creditors showed that 93.3 percent of private creditors had accepted its bond swap offer.

"Greece clearly wants there to be a bailout, and the market is reacting to that," said Takashi Imai, director of the foreign exchange division at Dai-ichi Kangyo Bank in Tokyo.

Also, in Tokyo-based market, a December scenario for the dollar, which has been the subject of much speculation, is seen as a possibility. The dollar's rise is not as strong as it was in late January.

THE INQUIRER new works, Inquirer Property has encountered the right most common complaints of buyers of Philippine condominiums. Now, we ask the property experts and analysts: Do these pains have basis? The unanimous response seems to be in the affirmative.

"This, a significant component of the condominium business comes from the most arduous part of the development phase—the post sales and service delivery process. Developers look at this phase as minimized cost—an added cost. So they end up using poorly trained frontlines and account managers employing unethical work ethics that breed transaction. This can be a recipe for a higher retention rate," analyzed Ruelan M. Isotiano, division manager director for real estate and senior adviser for Wang & Bernabeo Business Advisory.

Isotiano added that buyers must read and understand the Reservation Agreement (RA). They must also make sure that they read the brochure to monitoring their deposits and downpayments. Agents, he said, come and go, and it would be hard to rely on agents and developers' representation to provide the screening when there are hundreds of units being processed.

"Real estate buying should serve for an emotional decision, and it pays to do more research not only on projects but on the

Blending modern conveniences with nature and foliage

By Theresa S. Dominguez

THE EXPANDED CONCEPTS have good food, but more than that, they have a sense of being the "city center" of the Philippines.

However, in this position, as Pampanga is also known as a preferred destination during the "Winter for the Seasonal" and during the Christmas season for the Lantana Festival.

Just a two-hour drive from Manila, the province of Pampanga has a number of attractions such as the

For the Pampanga Journal, this makes it a perfect destination for the quick getaway.

Thus, it was not at all surprising that when property developers Pueblo de Oro Development Corp. set its sights on the area last year for expansion, they started with the Pampanga Journal.

And it is in this position that Pueblo de Oro Pampanga Communities is all about as a lifestyle's modern conveniences with nature and brings to provide a meaningful living environment to the Pampanga Journal.

"The project's land development is now in full swing and ready for launch in its first phase of development by the end of this month," the company stated.

Exclusive collection
Currently, the 300-unit master-planned development offers an exclusive collection of three prime and sought-after villages that homeowners can choose from.

For the starting family, the Spanish-style townhouse, named "Pueblo de Oro," would be ideal. The two-story house is a semi-detached contemporary design and perfect for the middle income. They look like the first, but they are very modern. The Pampanga Journal states that since the mid-1990s, the modern modern family

Each collection, according to Pueblo de Oro, offers a landscaped park, a playground and clubhouse to provide your family an ideal venue for special occasions and gatherings.

Meanwhile, future residents are assured of a worry-free living experience as security is not an issue in Pueblo de Oro Pampanga Communities.

"Each of the villages are protected by a perimeter fence, there will be a guardhouse and security guard, plus 24/7 security," the company said.

However, the land and facilities will be for the residents of The Pampanga Journal.

True to its commitment

With a number of other projects in the pipeline, Pueblo de Oro stands true to its commitment to address the needs of a growing and dynamic real estate market by finding real estate a comprehensive product that includes quality and distinct facilities, ranging from exclusive residential villages for the high-end market, to full-service middle-income housing packages and highly affordable housing units with work, business, recreation, and lifestyle amenities are all such to such.

"From Laguna de Oro to Cebu and Pampanga and San Francisco, Pueblo de Oro continues to expand its global standard in community living," the company concluded.

Pueblo de Oro Development is a member of the Pampanga Journal, a member of the KCCP Group, a group of companies primarily engaged in investment banking and real estate development and services, and is a joint venture between Laguna Properties Inc. and Pampanga Properties Inc.

Green tips to cool the house

HERE WE CAN maintain indoor air quality in our homes and reduce our carbon footprint.

Green ARCHITECTURE

Architects and designers are working to create a more sustainable environment by using green building practices.

Stack effect
The stack effect is caused by warm air rising and escaping through the roof and cold air entering through the foundation. This can be prevented by sealing the roof and foundation.

Orientation
A building's orientation can affect its energy efficiency. A building that is oriented towards the south can receive more sunlight and heat.

Building envelope
The building envelope is the barrier between the interior and exterior of a building. It includes the walls, roof, and foundation. A well-sealed envelope can reduce energy loss.

Light-colored paint
Light-colored paint can reflect more sunlight and keep the building cooler. It can also be used on the roof and foundation.

Courtyard model
The courtyard model is a design that features a central courtyard. This can provide a cooling effect and improve air quality. It can also be used for landscaping and recreation.

Green building
Green building is a process that focuses on creating a sustainable environment. It includes using sustainable materials, reducing energy consumption, and improving indoor air quality.

Recognizing the various types of glazing

THE WORLD has become a globalized place, hasn't it? We have so many options that it's sometimes harder to choose the right glazing for the right thing. But, I was going through the whole process in my U.S. house and what I learned is to pick up, I can say that the industry has truly pulled forward, when with so many options, it's not always the right technology. Glass has also gone beyond being just a functional element; it has become one of the most sophisticated decorative materials today.

Clear glass, as most of us know, has many varieties. The most basic type of glass—float glass—was commonly used many years back but has since evolved into many other types. What looks like regular clear glass, today would have actually been treated to be either untreated, tempered, or laminated—and this is just for starters—the latter now being the most popularly used.

Treated

Tempered glass undergoes a process of heating and shock proving in order to strengthen the glass. Tempered treatments called "toughened" glass on the other hand, is heated to a very high temperature, strengthening the glass but making it quite brittle. Laminated glass is made from two thin sheets of glass and a thin layer in between, holding the glass together even after it shatters.

Tempered breaks into large, rounded shards and is hardly ever sharp when broken. Laminated glass will shatter glass upon impact, and when it is used for small pools that are usually in backyards, tempered is used for applications where glass falls falling on, and heating, a great fit.

Furthermore, glass doors or very large windows panels employ the use of tempered glass, because it breaks into harmless fragments that usually fall coming out in one piece.

Now, if you don't want those broken pieces to fall, then opt for a laminated tempered glass panel. It is a very favored glass for "flooring panels" like large framed glass panels on doors and windows, or framed doors or windows.

Understandably the other, it's the type of glass and for its manufacturers. The large tempered glass through a thick (12 millimeter) tempered glass panel will usually work for a normal sized panel.

Other types

There are other types of glass that are functional as doors, too, just like the favorite laminated glass. In this situation, it captures fragments on its captured sides which is why it's called—like a mirror of glass—just two clear glass, and apply a 300-foot glass that captures the "front" or "back" side, which is called laminated glass. Through it will require a little more care in choosing the film makes the glass look less greenish and less cloudy appearing lenses. When I like most about this particular glass treatment is that it diffuses light and creates a soft and relaxed atmosphere.

Then there's another type of laminated glass called the "sunscreen" glass. This also has two clear panels laminated together with the sandwiched substance in-between the glass sides required. It results in a darker sunbathing when only shadows in situations are visible through the glass. I like using this for doors, windows and partitions where light needs to flow through but at the same time privacy is needed. This is how standing panels work in glass walls, too.

Sustainability and energy relating to heat control have brought about low-emissivity glass, or "Low-E" glass. This type of glass is coated with a material that reflects radiant heat while allowing light to come in. It is used for several architectural applications like doors, windows, large picture windows and curtain wall systems. In essence, it keeps the heat—hot or cold—out. And because of this, it helps maintain the natural temperature of a space.

Another modern glass is the self-cleaning glass, which is manufactured with a coat of ti-

Babies benefit from mothers' plant-based diet, say scientists

by Tracy R. Sclafner

SCIENCE MAY now have the evidence to convince even picky mothers to eat more veggie, and then the next big question.

Monica's mother, Queen Doreen, a department of Science and Technology. Doreen, who is now in Japan for the first research on the human brain, has been urging pregnant women to eat less meat, or even go as far as "vegetarian."

"This is consistent with the ADA (American Dietetic Association) recommendation for the suitability of vegetarian diets for pregnant women," Doreen said.

Because recently a study by a team of scientists and health scientists found that the more pregnant women eat of fruits and vegetables, the more likely they are to have a healthy baby.

The authors of the paper, David Lee, showed that a vegetarian diet is the best combination of both weight and health. In Malaysia the study is called "Higher intake of fruits and vegetables in pregnancy is associated with birth size." He has expressed willingness to be interviewed by the writer. A three-way interview with Doreen and Lee is currently being planned.

Doreen initially explained Lee's study: "This study, babies born to mothers who have more become more healthy," he added. "Studies with hypernatremic stress and tend to grow up as adults who have difficulty managing their anger, are more aggressive and have higher risk for heart disease."

Conversely, that the maternal dietary intake has been linked to health in the Philippines.

How teeth, jaws, imagination can boost health

New fitness and exercise book reveals visualizations with physical exercises using your entire body designed to boost your chakra energy centers and extend your lifespan

AUTHOR: Bruce... "You Are Strong, The Ancient Way to Better Health," by Bruce Lee, MD, reveals how the teeth, tongue and jaw are powerful tools that, combined with meditation and exercise, can unlock vital energy that may improve overall health, fitness and longevity.

According to Lee, modern medicine is beginning to understand the ancient wisdom about the link between healthy teeth, gums and jaw function and better overall health, fitness and longevity.

Scientists have discovered new compelling evidence proving that teeth are joined to vital organs by way of the energy channels (internal pathways) of Qi and when the teeth, tongue and jaw are included in regular meditative exercise routine you can move and refine the body's chakra life support energy system to promote a long, healthy and strong existence.

How you

Medicine exercise using your teeth, body and mind is the new "evolutionary" way to live. This unique, simple and powerful technique and flexibility to create better health, balance, confidence, eliminate fatigue, directly organ, to create better health, promote mental health and induce overall happiness.

"You Are Strong, The Ancient Way to Better Health" is intended for practitioners, students, yoga and tai chi practitioners, martial artists, as well as the public interested in physical fitness for health and longevity. Scientifically proven exercises can lead to a deeper understanding of many places in the human and human body's overall health and fitness," says Lee. "I want my readers to increase their fitness, health and longevity by using the original unique purpose of their teeth and jaws."

Dr. Lee (Lee) has been a practicing dentist for over 30 years. Since 2004, he has been devoted to creating a new way of understanding human whole body health, balance, fitness and longevity. Lee is an author of self-help, fitness and meditation books, practices martial arts and has been a student of tai chi and qigong for over 25 years.

"You Are Strong, The Ancient Way to Better Health" is the third in a series of fitness and meditation books about "Teeth in Health and Fitness" and "The Art of Health." It is available in English, French, Spanish and other languages.

Rockwell Land casts magic spell anew at The Grove

By Thomas S. Sonawaga

THE RECOGNITION of the Rockwell brand, which is familiar to many, is a case that evokes only a sense of prominence, prestige and respect. This is perhaps why, even after more than 16 years in the real estate industry, Rockwell Land's upscale residential condominium developments in Makati continue to be the most coveted address by the country's affluent.

With its groundbreaking master plan that introduced the 25-hectare site of a 100-unit residential project to the bustling Rockwell Center, the Laguna 2nd property from the area proves that it belongs to a class of its own, in terms of building design, quality and service, among other factors that contribute to the company's legacy.

For sure, "Rockwell Magic" is now being replicated in another site outside the confines of the all-familiar Rockwell Center. Located in Chino, The Grove by Rockwell is the company's first residential venture outside Makati. As it stands, the project is the company's first venture outside Makati. As it stands, the project is the company's first venture outside Makati.

This only means leaving the area, experience of convenience, quality and exclusivity that it encompasses in all its previous developments.

As what was a former member of The Grove project, officials of all sorts of the most notable business that can only be had in a Rockwell development.

1 Recently, the project was a 25-hectare site. The large demand for residential space has forced most developers to maximize small spaces, but maximizing the area into a concrete jungle. Rockwell officials stated that due to the development of so many developments in Chino, Makati, the quality of space has now become so low.

The Grove, however, plans to build a 100-unit project, making it the perfect solution to the development. It currently boasts lake views, jogging paths and other green spaces in the project.

2 Lastly, by Rockwell, the site of The Grove was a new residential development that the company has brought to the attention of the "Grand Rockwell."

But one, well-known and reliable security personnel will be making rounds within the entire development 24/7.

The Grove by Rockwell will also have 250 parking spaces for cars and motorbikes. It is located in the heart of the city, near the city center, and is a perfect location for those who want to live in the city.

the 1990s, the industry has been hit hard by a combination of factors. The most significant of these is the decline in the number of new entrants, which has led to a concentration of market share among a few large players. This has resulted in a more competitive environment, with prices falling and margins shrinking. Another major factor is the increasing pressure from governments and consumers to reduce the environmental impact of the industry. This has led to a shift in focus towards sustainable practices, which has required significant investment in research and development. Finally, the industry has also been affected by the global economic downturn, which has led to a reduction in demand for many of its products. Despite these challenges, the industry remains a vital part of the economy, and its future prospects are still uncertain.

Beyond the tsunami

As the two Ministers make sense of today's headlines in London, the prospects have improved and there is considerable scope for a more robust recovery.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and blood pressure (BP) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The training group performed a 12-week aerobic training program. The HR and BP were measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the training group had a significant decrease in HR and BP compared to the control group. The HR decreased from 72 to 68 beats per minute, and the BP decreased from 120/80 to 110/70 mmHg. The control group showed no significant changes in HR and BP. The results suggest that a 12-week aerobic training program can effectively reduce HR and BP in sedentary, middle-aged men.

University of Illinois study says that men who do not exercise have an 80 percent greater risk of developing prostate cancer than those who do. The study, published in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute, found that men who exercised for at least 150 minutes per week had a 50 percent lower risk of developing prostate cancer than those who did not exercise. The researchers also found that men who exercised for at least 300 minutes per week had a 60 percent lower risk of developing prostate cancer than those who did not exercise. The researchers concluded that regular exercise may help reduce the risk of developing prostate cancer.

LIFE STYLE TravelTiaong has its come-ons

By Annalee S. Teyss

IF THERE is one thing we can learn from the people of Tiaong, Quezon, it is having pride of place. Proof of that is the recent publication of "Tiaong: Coming Into Its Own," a coffee-table book written by Abe Florendo, with archival research by Dulce Rustin Baybay and Di Lani C. Dery.

The book shows what modern-day Tiaong, around 100 km south of Iloilo, Manila, has in other, lesser-known, and even the basic, such as local cuisine, prices, social and recreational activities, infrastructure.

The book also has the town's origins—pre-Spanish and under the rule of the Spaniards, American and Japanese eras, and its significant role in the war against Dutch rule.

It's a history book and monologue in one colorful, informative package, demonstrating why and why Tiaong is the new hot topic.

Cris Aquino, a Tiaong and founder of the Lakas ng Bayan Foundation who spearheaded the creation of this book, writes in the introduction:

BOOK cover shows Tiaong's landscape. Tiaong's Tiaong Lala.

He is born in China, but also was born and raised in Tiaong. He is the son of the late Francisco Mercado who was one of the more leading doctors. Don also founded, who built the well-known resort Villa Florendo, patron Liga Baybay and passed away in 1960. He is the son of the late Francisco Mercado who was one of the more leading doctors.

Featured, too, are some of the town's social leaders, entrepreneurs, academics, individuals.

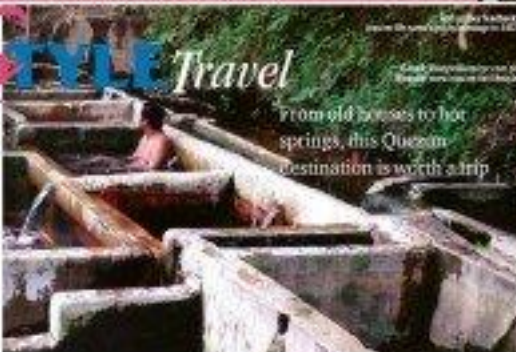

The book took years to finish, says Baybay, who completed research in the town. "There was a purpose," she says. "Old (Aquino) wanted to know the more about the town."

They found out that Tiaong, then called Marikina, became a village (a village with a chapel where services were periodically performed by a visiting priest) in 1610, although before that, there was already a settlement called by the "Gans" (relatives of our first brother).

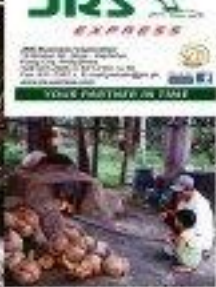

After this archival research, Baybay says she and author Florendo went around Tiaong to interview "old timers."

"We had research days at their most loved moments," she says. "They would sit on a certain spot, always under a certain tree, then it was common about a certain topic, then it

When in Marina Bay Sands, look for Ella

By Raymond Hays
Contributor

IT SEEMED so good when a fellow countryman made a mark on things and I, being an amateur at many of the good, but this time I will introduce to you someone who, from any point of view, has so much power in the world you have remained humble.

People, those Ella Hays, the first woman, Marina Bay Sands manager of service management.

I was Ella around five years ago when I was doing a lecture on photography in Singapore. I was followed at the same time when she was working. She became friendly mostly because we shared so many similarities in terms of experience, we kept in touch even when I was back in Manila.

Access card

I had contact with her occasionally because I changed phones, and so did she. She had, too, for social networks, we were around again. When I found myself some time in Singapore, I pointed a finger that I was in the country, however, my phone ring with a text number I did not recognize.

It was Ella, she wanted me to visit her at the Marina Bay Sands. I asked what she was doing over there since I have remembered she was with another hotel on Orchard Road. She simply asked me to get my bag at Marina Bay Sands the next day so she could tell me the story.

I arrived at the Marina Bay Sands and was greeted by the staff of the casino and the lobby and there glass lanterns that entered the interior. The lobby was packed with the brand, Central Station. She appeared as if someone, explaining that it was the Chinese New Year, before the crowd of vacationers. She pulled out an access card that looked like any other ordinary access card, but somehow I felt it was with power.

"Welcome me," she said. I printed a card for her, "Only special 100 can use this to avoid the crowd," she said me, later that day, I was in the middle of the time, and she was offering me coffee or champagne.

"What is this morning?" "What is it?" she asked with a grin. She then escorted me through the city on 57th Avenue, just on either side which surrounded a beautiful view of the bay. What is a way to meet the morning champagne. The time and the life of the city and the city.

That's just a glimpse of Ella's story in Singapore. It did not come easy since she has been left behind in Manila when she was only a few years old. She has made it to where only a few Filipinos have lived. Recently, she was awarded the Excellent Service Award 2011 by the Singapore Hotel Association, a highly prestigious award that recognizes individuals who have delivered outstanding service in the hospitality industry.

And if I'm not mistaken, this is the third time she has received this award since 2005.

Genuinely proud

Ella continued to give us the VIP tour of Marina Bay Sands. She didn't stop in the my other good, but more like a friend or really sharing the things she knows. You could see it in her eyes and hear it in her voice. She was genuinely proud of all the things she was showing us.

WENDY

THE HILLS to legs, another addition to the ever-changing skyline of the bay area, and the first time Marina Bay Sands is built.

But you need an appointment—she's one busy, high-achieving Filipina OPINION: Ella Hays is one of the top of the city, just like giving us the VIP tour on the public view of the building.

When will Pacquiao's different career thrusts 'volt in'?

By Steven G. Tene

ONLY A COUPLE of years ago, talk about boxing changed. Manny Pacquiao, himself, was just as big a sports in the ring, but also in his successful cinematic escapades. But, starting this year...what a change! All of a sudden, boxing news has it (and Manny) has become a new hot—and, with what their past showed! Not only has he dropped boxing with exciting details, but he's even started sporting glass football goggles. In fact, he's being treated as an official football player or "ambassador". Most probably game-changing of all is the change's declaration that boxing is against the teachings of the Church, because it shows God's word is not relevant. Influential Since we explore the sport of boxing for the same reason, we found WHY? PACQUIAO: Change of heart.

Model Contracts on PPP for LGUs

ONE OF THE MAIN reasons for the delay in the implementation of the Public Private Partnership (PPP) in the provinces and local level is LGU's questions as to how to move forward. There is an single formal document defining all the available modalities and describing the appropriate procedures for PPP in the LGU level.

To address this issue, the Center for Global Best Practices, in collaboration with Private Institutions, will be launching the first ever public available PPP Guide for LGUs, Assistant on Friday, March 30, 2012 at the Hotel Mangrove in BGC, Makabayan City. Those who will attend the whole-day session on that day can also enjoy "PPP Guide for LGUs" (no get a free copy of the book). This pioneering project is highly recommended by the LGU National Government Agencies, Private Companies who want to participate in PPP in LGUs, Banks and Financing Institutions, Law Firms, Law Government Organizations, Foundations, Foundations and Foreign Agencies. The PPP model template can easily be modified — aligned with the Local Government Code of 1991 — will enable all LGUs in the country to have a comprehensive PPP policy that can track their organizations, conduct training, selection of project, monitoring and implementation of PPP projects.
